Technical Interviews for Recruiting Agencies: Service Details

Serhii Babich · October 2026

What I cover

- Frontend, Trainee to Tech Lead: full technical depth, including frontend architecture and leading a team.
- Senior and lead roles in any stack: product thinking, delivery, design at product level, code review, leadership.
- Not covered: stack internals outside frontend. The client's engineer covers those, and I say so up front.

How it works

Steps 1 and 2 happen once per role; 3 to 5 for every candidate.

1. Define the role. A short call with you and, ideally, the client's hiring manager: what the person will do, which skills matter on day one, which can be learned later.
2. Write the role profile and interview plan. Must-haves, nice-to-haves, red flags, and the topics and scenarios I'll use. You and the client approve it before the first interview.
3. Prepare. I read the CV and decide where to dig within the plan.
4. Interview. 60–90 minutes, recorded, on real situations: decisions, trade-offs, debugging, and how the candidate handles an unclear task. A coding stage can be added if the role needs one.
5. Report and debrief. A written assessment within 48 hours, then a short call if you or the client have questions.

What you receive

Every report states whether the candidate passed the technical interview and at what level, judged only against the criteria approved in step 2. I don't give a hire or no-hire verdict; that decision is the client's. For roles outside frontend, the result and level cover the areas I assess; the stack check stays with the client. Reports are written in the language of the interview, English or Ukrainian. Sample reports on request.

Deliverable	When	What's in it	Who it's for
Role profile and interview plan	Before the first interview	Must-haves, nice-to-haves, red flags; topics and scenarios	You and the client approve
Short assessment	Within 48 hours of the interview	Result, level, scorecard against the must-haves, strengths and concerns in a few lines	Recruiter; forward to the client
Full assessment	With the short one	Everything above, plus the evidence area by area	Client's hiring manager
Candidate feedback	On request	A separate summary written for the candidate: strengths and what to work on	The candidate, through you

Result scale

Result	Meaning
Passed	Meets every must-have
Borderline	Partly meets one or more must-haves, with none missing; each gap is named
Not passed	Doesn't meet one or more must-haves

Level: Trainee, Junior, Middle, Senior or Lead, with + or − where it helps (for example, Middle−).

Pricing

Prices are what your agency pays me; you set your own price to the client. No retainer or minimum.

Model	Price	What's included	Best for
Hourly	$80/hour	Time spent: role setup usually 2–4 hours, each candidate 2–3 hours ($160–240)	A first request

Model	Price	What's included	Best for
Fixed per candidate	$240 per role setup; $200 per full interview; $120 per express screening	Full: 60–90 min, both reports. Express: 45–60 min, short report only	Quoting the client up front
Prepaid pack	$1,800 for 10 full interviews ($180 each)	Setup for up to 2 roles included; valid 3 months	Regular requests

Add-ons

- Coding stage or take-home review: $80/hour, usually 1–2 hours.
- Report within 24 hours: +$40 per candidate.
- Candidate-facing feedback: quoted per request.
- Calibration session for your recruiters: $80/hour.

Cancellations. Rescheduling with 24 hours' notice is free. A no-show or later cancellation: $40.

Capacity and service levels

Up to 3 interviews a week. When a week is full, I say so and offer the next free slots.

Commitment	Standard
Interviews per week	Up to 3
First available slot	Usually within 3 working days
Report	Within 48 hours of the interview (24 as an add-on)
Working hours	Monday to Friday, Kyiv time (EET, UTC+2/+3); evenings by arrangement
Languages	English, Ukrainian
Format	Online; you or the client schedule, host and record the call

Working terms

A consulting agreement with your agency; the client stays yours.

- Payment. Invoiced in USD, monthly for work done or up front for prepaid packs; paid by bank transfer (IBAN) within 14 days.

- Scheduling. You or the client own the process: scheduling the candidate, sending the invite and hosting the call. I join at the agreed time.
- Recording. Every interview must be recorded. I base the report on the recording, not on memory, so every judgement is backed by evidence. You or the client record the call, get the candidate's consent and share the recording with me right after the call.
- Assessment. Criteria are agreed and approved before the first interview, and every report is judged strictly against them. I report whether the candidate passed the technical interview; the hiring decision is the client's.
- White-label or co-branded. Under your agency's name and template, or as a named independent expert. Same price.
- Client relationship. Client communication goes through you unless you say otherwise.
- Confidentiality. NDA on request, yours or mine. CVs, recordings and reports are used only for that role, and my copies are deleted when it closes.

Next steps

Start with the next client who asks for a technical assessment, on the hourly model, and judge the reports before committing to more.

1. A 20-minute intro call: your clients, the roles you hire for most, how you want to present the service.
2. When a client asks, send me the role description and we book the role call.
3. I set up the role, run the first interviews, and we review the reports together.
